

Student's Guide to Training at Unitec

Preparation / Prerequisites

Please ensure you understand the prerequisites for the class you will be attending. If unsure, please call Unitec to discuss.

In order to maximize what you take away from training bring problems you need to solve. Bring your work!

SolidWorks Essentials Course: It is very advantageous to spend some time running through the tutorials that come with SolidWorks prior to attending this course. If you have any apprehension, please call and we can schedule you into a 2-3 hour Hands-On class prior to the 4-day course. Proficiency with any other 3D CAD program is beneficial.

While a working knowledge of Microsoft Windows is required to maximize your SolidWorks experience, a lack of experience with Windows can be overcome. (Most people learned Windows because they needed to learn an application.)

Logistics

Classes begin promptly at 9 AM unless otherwise noted. Typically, they run until 4 PM.

Lunch is not provided except if specifically noted. There are over a dozen restaurants within walking distance of Unitec – from Subway to Sushi, pizza to Jamaican beef patties. For those brown bagging it, Unitec provides a microwave, hot/cold water and coffee/tea. We allow food and beverages in our training room.

Students will be using our training workstations which have the necessary software installed. Optionally, students can bring their own laptops to training; please ensure software is installed and configured in advance. WiFi is available.

Training manuals are provided for each student. The training files are available for download from the SolidWorks website for review upon completion of the course.

Cancellation (Weather Issues Postponements)

Classes may be postponed due to inclement weather or other event outside our control. In this case, Unitec will make every effort to contact every student beforehand. Please ensure you have provided Unitec a home or cellular phone number and/or an email address in which you can check away from your office.

If a class is postponed Unitec will work with all the students to find a mutually agreeable date to make-up the class.
